FONTENOY

While the French forces, Commanded by Marshal SAXE were besieging TOWNAY, a city in southern Belgium, 50,000 British, Dutch, and Austrian troops tried to relieve the city by attacking the French, near there. The French, however, being reinforced, held their own and beat back the allies. A grand Charge by the "Irish Brigade" decided the battle. A great blow to England, as it came at the same period as the threatened STUART invasion.
